High - Pressure

Living characterizes these modern days. There is a fearful increase of Brain and Heart Disease, General Debility, Paralysis, Paralytic, and Insanity. Chloral and Morphine are the evil. The medicine best adapted to do permanent good is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It purifies, enriches, and vitalizes the blood, and thus strengthens every function and faculty of the body.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for years. I have found it invaluable.

"I have been a practicing physician for over half a century, and during that time I have never found so powerful and reliable an alternative and blood-purifier as Ayer's Sarsaparilla." —Dr. M. Maxzett, Louisville, Ky.

Swiss' Sarsaparilla is entirely a vegetable remedy, and is the only one which permanently cures Blood Poison. It is a safe and powerful Remedy. It is good for the skin, and for the hair.

DAILY REPUBLICAN.

FROM WASHINGTON.

R. H. HAWKINS & J. M. MORSE,
HAMPSHIRE & MOSS, Prop'trs.
DETROIT, ILLINOIS.

Entered at Post Office at Decatur, Illinois, second class mail matter.

MONDAY EVE, MARCH 4, 1889.

PRESIDENT HARRISON, howdy.

CROWD CLEVELAND got notice to vacate on November 6, and to-day he got the razle-daze.

GEN. WM. S. HARVEY, the famous Indian fighter, now nearly 89 years old, is living at Jacksonville, Fla., and in the enjoyment of good health.

PRESIDENT HARRISON has sent word that he will not dance in the opposing quadrilles of the Washington centennial ball, to be given in New York April 29. Veto No. 1.

PRESIDENT HARRISON took two constitutional walks in Washington on Sunday and each time he had to carry umbrella. It is his habit to take brisk walks for exercise.

PRESIDENT HARRISON is to be a partner of Mr. Akrell in the publication of the reconstructed Frank Leslie's Weekly. It is not known whether this arrangement will make any change in Mr. Harrison's Montana enterprises.

MR. GRANTORO made a good speech in the House of Commons Friday night. He taunted the Tories with their treatment of Ireland and of Irish members of Parliament, and referred to the Tory and London Times conspiracy to run Parnell. He concluded by warning the Times of the "signs of the coming doom." When Parnell rose to speak, the entire opposition, including "the grand old man," sprang to their feet and cheered him vociferously.

OUTLINE OF THE TRIP.

The Decatur Party and Their Quartet in Washington City.

The following letter from Washington City, written March 1st, was received Sunday evening. It tells all about the trip of the Decatur party.

The late hour at which we arrived last evening (Feb. 28) prevented my writing by the mail of last night, the hurry of getting fixed in our new quarters for the time consuming the time until it was too late.

To say that we had a delightful trip only half expresses the truth. We had the kind attentions of Gen. Conklin, of the T. H. & P., and so intelligent were those attentions, so generously given, that all the party were saved many annoyances and vexations. Then, too, the party selected Mr. L. J. Burrows as general steward of the expedition, and it made no mistake in doing so. To him was entrusted all the arrangements that were necessary. He carried the tickets for the whole party, and no one of the party was annoyed by the officials conductor with his ever present demand to see by what authority we were on his train.

In short, Mr. Burrows acted the part of a provident father, and if anybody needed anything, or imagined he did, which is about the same thing—all that was necessary was to inform our attentive factotum of the want and it was supplied. There were plenty of moments to make the trip the reverse of monotonous, but they were not extraordinary enough to demand recall. We had a pleasant and safe trip, and bearing a delay of nearly two hours in the way, occasioned by a journal of one car taking on a condition of temperature similar to that experienced by the Democratic party last November, everything went well. There was some disappointment occasioned by the discovery that the railroad company could not give us track room to our car anywhere in our route, which forced us to seek accommodations at the hotels. In this we were singularly fortunate, for the first place we went to the St. James—we succeeded in getting three large rooms on the Avenue front, with two windows in each, and all of them at remarkably low figures, as we have since learned. Indeed, so desirably are we located, that I have no doubt we could dispose of our windows for Monday for more money than our entire bill will be for the week. In these three rooms twenty of us are stowed away, but we have six splendid beds, and mattresses, the floor for the rest, and we take turns night about on the floor, so that everybody gets a good bed at least every other night.

We are seeing all the sights that are to be seen, and, saying the truth of each day, "which is little less, terribile, all are feeling first rate. Before we go away from the depot last evening we ran across John Washburn, who had come in from Baltimore on another section of the same train, and today found George W. Belzer, who is doing his length best to maintain the high standard of Whittmore township Republicanism. Congressmen Rowell and Cannon have shared all the attention in their power, as has also Senator Cutler. We have not yet received any particular attention from the man who is President now, nor from the one who will "get there" on Monday, but these facts are doubtless owing to our failure to notify them of our arrival.

Washington is fast filling up with visitors. There are noticeably more people on the streets now than were here last evening, and the crowd has hardly begun to arrive. From the Capitol to the White House the Avenue is a perfect sea of flags and decorations, and every available spot is crowded with temporary staging for the sight seers. The fronts of buildings are covered with the same unightly but useful enclosures, and more than a hundred thousand people will be able to hire cars in eligible places for viewing the procession. The influx of strangers promises to surpass anything ever seen in Washington, and if the weather should prove favorable the night will be well worth the long trip we have taken to see it. The day has been bright and beautiful, and all the Decatur party managed to make the best of it. J. R. M.

Kate Finch says that the women who come to be fashionable might as well commit suicide at the start. She must be fed home, husband and children, put away comfort and convenience, be a first-class hypocrite, and a good blunderer, and at the end of ten years break down and become a physical wreck.

A Resume of the Fifteenth Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The Fifteenth Congress ends to-day at noon. At that hour it expires by limitation. The House dissolves, but the Senate, continuing in existence, meets in extra session, to form a new organization, and to confirm or reject joint resolutions introduced by the President in relation to the same.

The Fifteenth Congress will be noted in history for four things: First, the admission into the Union of four new States—North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Washington; second, for the tariff discussion, which occupied most of the time in both Houses and Senate; third, for the creation of a new executive department, and fourth, for the amount of filibustering that took place in the House.

Undoubtedly the most important business Congress disposed of was the admission of four new States to the Union. This action would have been taken, however, before the session which added the presidency. It was an action of great importance to the Union, adding to the strength of the general Government and relieving it of a great deal of responsibility.

It is of importance to the Republican party also, as securing the good working majority in the next Congress. The creation of the Executive Department, which was given to President Harrison in his Cabinet office with which to reward some leader of the Republican party.

The tariff discussion consumed a great deal of time of the House and Senate, and although no legal right existed to require a revenue and simply to tax the public database as such, to confine with the distinction of policy of either party in the election contest, and probably opened the way to legislation in the next Congress. An effort was made when the session was near its close to have the tobacco tax repealed, but failed. The bill was easily opposed by members of the committee on ways and means who, through their friends, prevented its consideration by resorting to filibustering tactics.

The abuse of the rules of the House, by the minority during the second session, had a bad effect, bringing further features of the business of that body.

Mr. Worcester and Mr. Anderson made themselves famous by preventing the consideration of all business until the majority in the House would consent to the consideration of the measures in which they were interested.

Mr. Conklin, of Indiana, also created a dangerous filibustering tactic to prevent the consideration of the Direct-Tax bill. This was in the first session. The filibuster in the second session was directed principally against the consideration of the Pacific Railroad Building Fund and the Cowles bill to repeal the proposed tax and in favor of the construction of the Idaho bill.

The Direct-Tax bill was effectively disposed of by the filibusters. The power placed in the hands of the minority by the existing rules is so great and it has been applied so often in the Congress, that a rule which reflects a fact which emphasizes the necessity so often admitted of providing a tribunal for the arbitration of the claims against the Government, which are now brought to Congress for adjudication.

There were introduced in the Senate in the Fifteenth Congress, 3,000 bills and 146 joint resolutions, and 2,700 reports were made from committees. In the House there were 12,430 bills, 207 joint resolutions and 1,161 reports.

In the Forty-ninth Congress there were introduced 3,358 Senate bills, 11,280 House bills, 11,200 Senate joint resolutions, 290 House joint resolutions, and 2,700 reports were made from committees. In the present Congress, 31, one in twenty passed the House, and not one in thirty passed both houses and went to the President.

The friends of the Oklahoma bill succeeded in carrying it through the House, but it remains unconsidered in the Senate.

The Cowles bill was effectively disposed of by the filibusters. The power placed in the hands of the minority by the existing rules is so great and it has been applied so often in the Congress, that a rule which reflects a fact which emphasizes the necessity so often admitted of providing a tribunal for the arbitration of the claims against the Government, which are now brought to Congress for adjudication.

The President's Reasons for Vetoing the Direct-Tax Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The President yesterday returned to the Senate, without approval, the measure known as the Direct-Tax bill, which contemplated the return of the money collected from the several States and territories under the act of 1848. In his message to the Senate he said:

"It is my belief that this appropriation of the public funds is not within the constitutional power of Congress. * * * A severance by testudo of the power of individuals, however no testudo, to appropriate money for the benefit of the State or territory, is not a power which the Constitution gives to Congress."
